Poetry.

The Mother A softening thought of other years,
A feeling linked to hours
When life was all too bright for tears,
And hope sang wreathed with flowers;
Amemory of affections fied,
Of vacces heard no more;
Surred in nor spirit when I read,
That name of fondness o'er.

o mother .- In that magic word What loos and look combined !
What loos, too oit, also, deferred!
What watchings—griefs—are thine!
Yetnever, till the hour we roam.
Hy worldly thralls oppres"t,
Learn we to prize that holiest home,
A tender mother's breast.

Ten thousand prayers at midnight poured Beside our couch of wees;
The wasting weariness endured To seften our repuse:
While murmur never marked thy tongue, Nor toils relaxed thy care!
Bow, mother, is thy heart so strong.
To pity and forbear!

What filial fondness o'er repaid,
Or could repay the past?
Alsa, for gratitude decayed!
Regrete that rarely isst!
This only when the dust is thrown
Thy blessed bosom o'er,
We muse on all thy kindness shown,
And wish we'd loved thee more,

Tis only when the lips are cold We mourn-with late regret.
Mid myriad memories of old—
The days for overset;
And not an act. or look, or thought,
Against the meek control,
But with a sad remembrance fraught,
Wakes anguish in the soul!

On every land, in every clime, True to her sacred cause;
Filled by that influence sublime
From which her strength she draws—
Still is the mother's heart the same;
The mother's lot as tried;
And, O. may nations guard that name
With fillal power and pride,

The Magnetic Telegraph BY JAMES G. LYONS, L. L. D. Along the smooth and slender wires.
The sleepless heralds run.
Fast as the clear and living rays.
Go streaming from the sun.
No peals or flashes beard or seen,
Their wondrous flight betrays:
And yet their words are plainly felt.
In cities far away.

Nor summer's heat, nor winter's hail,
Can check their rapid course;
They meet unmoved the fierce wind's rage.
The rough wave's sweeping force;
In the long night of rain and wrath,
As in the blaze of day.
They rush with notes of weal or wee,
To thousands far away.

But faster still than tidings borno
On that electric cord,
Rise the pure thoughts of him who loves
The Christian's life and Lord;
Of him who taught in smiles and tears,
With fervent lips to pray,
Maintains high converse here on earth
With bright worlds far away.

Aye! though no outward wish is breathed,
No outward answer given.
The sighing of the humble heart
Is known and felt in Heaven;
Those long frail wires may bend and break,
Those viewless heralds stray.
But Faith's least word shall reach the throne
Of God, though far away.
